Building and Garden Lots,

CONTIGUOUS to, and at a small distance from the city, to be sold at the coffee house in Second street, on Wednesday the 20th of March, at 6 o'clock in the evening, containing from about 1-4 of an acre to about 4 acres each. The small lots fronting on Vine and Callowhill streets, on the west side of Schuylkill Second street, and the large lots containing whole or half or quarter squares, some of them bounded on the west by Schuylkill and the upper ferry road including some fine quarry lots on Schuylkill: the whole containing about 140 acres, and formerly known by the name of Springsbury; bounded on the north by Francis street, extending from the Ridge road to Schuylkill, crossing the canal, on which several of the lots will give fronts.

The situation of many of the large lots is on high ground, commanding beautiful views of the Schuylkill, supposed to be sufficiently detached to escape any unfortunate disorder which may be prevalent in the city.—The terms will be made known at the time of the sale.

N. B. Maps of the lots are fixed up at the middle and upper ferries on Schuylkill, at Seybert's Tavern, in Second street, Northern Liberties; at Ogdens tavern in Chesnut street, and at the coffee house.

The convenience of stone so near the premises will prove very advantageous to purchasers.
CONNELLY & Co. auct'rs.

Postponement.

☞ The uncommon severity of the weather having prevented many persons from viewing the lots above described, the sale is postponed until Saturday the 20th April next, when it will be held on the premises, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The terms will be cash for those lots which are 50 feet, and 49 and an half feet front, and for those of a larger size, one half the cash to be paid down and the other half in six months from the day of sale.
march 20

TAKE NOTICE,

THAT I am to be sold on such terms, that the purchaser need not advance any cash, unless he pleases, till it is earned by my services, provided no accident happens me; or, if you please, I am to be farmed out for two years, and not less. I am a bright bay, full 15½ hands high, of noble descent, my name is TRIMMER—I was got by Hall's imported horse Eclipse, my dam, purchased by Doctor Hall, was got by the imported horse Slim; my grand dam was got by Old Figure; my great grand dam by Taskers Othello out of Selima, &c. &c. as will more fully appear by William Lyle's attested certificate who raised me. My character as a racer is well established; I won the colt's purse at Bladensburg of twenty guineas; I won a fifty guinea purse at Baltimore, a fifty guinea purse at Annapolis and a fifty guinea purse at Hagerstown. I never lost a race but the last I run at Alexandria, which was owning to my being badly shod, as I lost all my plates before I got in. I am in fine plight, sound in every respect; my offspring are in great repute, some of which are now in training for the turf—procure me good stands and entertainment and I am able to earn one thousand dollars per annum.

Any person inclining to buy or rent may know the terms by applying to John Carnan (Lovehall) Cecil county and state of Maryland, eight miles south of Elkton.

WILLIAM S. THOM, informs the public that JOHN POOR had no interest nor concern in the Goods which were deposited in his cellar. Whatever suspicions we might entertain on the subject, it would be hard to prove his having an interest in the property, it is however an unfortunate circumstance for that gentleman, that in the same advertisement William Thom likewise asserts that those goods were not secreted. In order that a true judgment may be formed of the credit due to this salvo we will ask—Why were the goods packed up after dark, with the window over the door darkened by a blanket hung up behind it?—Why was a porter called up out of his bed? and why was the candle extinguished when they were taken away, and his poor little boy left, as he said, in the dark, till the whole (three loads) were carried off?—two of these loads were hauled to John Poor's cellar, and received by himself at near eleven o'clock at night. Several days elapsed before the porter employed in the business was discovered—On taking him and a Sheriff's officer to this schoolmaster's, he at first denied having any such goods in his possession, but on being informed that the porter was ready to attest that he delivered them to him, he confessed there were some goods in his cellar, but would not confess that he knew where they came from, whose they were, or any thing about them. Indeed so great was his caution, that he absolutely refused to take a receipt from the Sheriff's officer when he took them away. We shall just add, that this schoolmaster was the first person suspected by us to have the goods in his possession, as we can fully prove.

The Constitutional Gazette;

AND

Republican Courier.

The Subscriber respectfully offers to the Public, proposals for a Newspaper, under the title of the Constitutional Gazette; and Republican Courier.

IT is intended to be published three times a week in the city of Philadelphia; viz. on every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening. The subscription will be five dollars per annum, half to be paid by subscribers in the city when called for. The difficulty of collecting small sums in the country, renders it necessary to ask the subscription, out of the city, to be paid in advance, or the name of a person in Philadelphia who will pay them regularly.

Although the proposed Newspaper will be of a smaller size than the unhandy sheets now generally in use, it will contain as much as the generality of the daily Gazettes. It is expected that a very small portion of it will be occupied by advertisements, which will occasion an unusual quantity of intelligence and information. It will be published in the quarto form, and regularly paged, to render it convenient for binding in volumes, to each of which an Index will be attempted.

The principles intended to be supported, are those of the Federal and State Constitutions. The friends of the tranquility, peace and happiness of this country, may rely on a calm, decent and firm adherence to those valuable Republican codes. The Editor is unwilling to make large promises, but he assures his friends and the public, that he has ground to rely on important literary and political contributions from various sources. Without such an expectation, he would not have undertaken, at this time, to publish a new Gazette. He believes the Press to be the noblest instrument in the command of Freemen, and he flatters himself that The Constitutional Gazette will not be found among the most exceptionable, nor among the least useful

Subscriptions are received by the different booksellers, and at the subscriber's office, No. 90, South Third street, at which place the Weekly Magazine continues to be published.

ON INLAND NAVIGATION.

LETTER III.

March 23, 1799.

I PROCEED, as proposed in my last letter, to state some of the chief difficulties and discouragements which have occurred to impede or retard the prosecution and completion of the great plan of Inland Navigation throughout this commonwealth; and particularly so far as it is connected with the Delaware and Schuylkill Canal, the first and most capital link of the chain.

Leaving, for a subsequent letter, the statement of sundry difficulties which occurred, from the novelty of such undertakings in this new world, and consequently (not being foreseen) could not be fully provided for, by the laws of the state, or the general arrangements and ordinances of the incorporated companies, at the commencement of their works; this letter shall be confined to an account of the obstructions and delays which have disagreeably and unexpectedly resulted from negotiations, at first opened with public spirited intentions (as it is believed) on both sides, between the Councils of the City Corporation, and the President and Managers of the Canal Corporation; by means of which the Legislature has been embarrassed during their last and present sessions, in their benevolent intentions and proceedings for granting public aid with a free and impartial hand, towards the general system of Improvement for the benefit of their constituents at large.

On the meeting of the Legislature in December, 1797, the governor, in his address, having in view that part of the object of the incorporation of the Delaware and Schuylkill Canal Company, which connects the completion of the Canal, for the great purposes of Inland Navigation, with the introduction of a copious and permanent supply of water, for the benefit of the city and its vicinity, expressed himself as follows, viz.—

"The interposition of the Legislature will be indispensably necessary, in order to ensure such a supply of water, thro' the medium of Canals, as appears to have become essential to the general convenience, as well as health of the community." The Governor, likewise, in his address to a preceding Legislature, contemplating the most important interests of the state, had recommended an immediate attention and aid, to our Canals and Inland Navigation, as the essential means to place Pennsylvania on an equal footing with the neighboring states; who, by superior and more early attention to the improvement of their navigable waters, were likely to engross the whole western trade of the rivers and lakes, to the great injury of the agriculture, commerce and manufactures of this commonwealth." Indeed, such has been the progress in the improvement of their navigable waters, aided and encouraged by their Legislatures, (in the state of New-York especially) that goods and necessary commodities, purchased at Philadelphia for the supply of our frontier posts on Lake Erie, in the Miami country, and even at Pittsburgh, and down the Ohio waters, can be transported from Philadelphia to New-York and Albany, (and thence by their Inland Navigation and short portages) to the lakes and remote western settlements, than can be done, from Philadelphia to the same places, by any land or water carriage yet in operation within this state.

Embracing the principles of the governor's addresses to the Legislature (above referred to) respecting Inland Navigation, and the Delaware and Scuylkill Canal particularly, as a most important object of immediate concern, not only, as a capital link to the great chain of water communication from all parts of the state, to the city in a commercial view, but for such a supply of pure and wholesome water "through the medium of that canal, as appears essential to the general convenience as well as HEALTH of the community; the committee of the city councils for that year (in which there were some respectable members, not in the present committee) solicited a conference* with the president, managers, and company of the Delaware and Scuylkill Canal Navigation, declaring themselves in the entire spirit of the Governor's Address to be impressed with a belief that among the various methods suggested for introducing a sufficient quantity of wholesome water into the city, none have appeared to them so well calculated to ensure the attainment of that desirable object, as the completion of the CANAL projected to unite the Delaware and Scuylkill;" adding, that their choice of this medium of a supply of water, was from a "conviction that the prosecution of this object would also contribute to aid the great and important undertaking of inland navigation, as this canal forms a capital link in the great chain [of water communication] between our metropolis, and the Ohio and Western Lakes."†

The Canal Company cheerfully embraced the views of the committee of the city councils, by the immediate appointment of a committee of managers and Stockholders on their part, and the negociations were spun out, (owing in some degree to the difficulty of assembling a board of the city councils, consisting of two distinct bodies) until it became too late in that session of the Legislature, to proceed further in the business. In justice however to some of the active members of the city committee for that year, the canal committee have declared‡ "That nothing but candor and liberality to the utmost extent of their power, appeared on the part of the latter: and it was hoped that every thing might be matured by the beginning of the present session, for uniting every in the prosecution of a great and useful work."

But, much to the disappointment of the Canal Company, leading to an injurious procrastination of measures, the committee of the city councils now acting, came forward at the commencement of the present session of the Legislature, not on the principles of their committee of the last year, soliciting a conference or negociations with the Canal Company, but wholly on new and adverse grounds, arraigning the wisdom of our former Legislatures, in all their measures concerted since the year 1791, for the internal improvement of the country, and impeaching the abilities and public spirit of some of the greatest men in the Canal Company, which Pennsylvania has yet produced, either for devising or executing beneficial works.

"It has been a favorite theory, says the city committee, that public advantages are best promoted and obtained, when it is made the interest of private persons or associated companies to advance the public good. The history of companies incorporated, on this basis, in Pennsylvania, since 1791, gives the evidence of experience, that the theory should be received with some caution, &c. It now rests with the Legislature to pursue that speculative policy, with the aid of legislative grants, or to try the effect of promoting public good on the basis of public spirit, &c."

The futility of this admonition to the legislature, has been sufficiently exposed, in the printed address, referred to in the last note before inserted—The present city committee further say, concerning the canal (so much approved by their predecessors, as the most certain and permanent source for a supply of pure and wholesome water) "that the canal is not the only source, or only tract of conveyance" for wholesome water, and declining all connexion with the canal company, as before solicited, they pray the legislature in effect to repeal their former acts, and the charter rights thereby granted to other citizens, and to grant power and money, to be sported with in wild schemes for local purposes, at more than double the expence and time requisite to accomplish one of the greatest undertakings, which the legislature of Pennsylvania hath ever yet contemplated for the improvement of their country, the honor of the state and the emolument of all its citizens.

In the printed papers already referred to, these schemes have been examined, so far as respects their feasibility, expence and time, in the ordinary means of execution, in this country. But before I proceed further, it may be proper to say something concerning the grand bubble, viz.

STEAM ENGINES.

I call them a bubble, with respect to the ends proposed—as the new oracle of the city committees perseveres to hold them up by various misstatements of their use and application, to lead his easy followers, and (as he may vainly think) the inexperienced citizens and legislators of this new world, to adopt any visionary project, which hardihood may prompt.

In the Encyclopedia, vol. 17, p. 761, the authors sum up their account of these engines, by mentioning Mr. Fitzgerald exclusive patent, who with his associates, "published proposals for erecting mills of all kinds driven by steam engines, and stated very fairly their powers and their advantages. But their proposals do not seem to have acquired the confidence of the public; for we do not know of any mill ever having been erected under this patent. The great obstacle to this extensive use of the steam engine is the prodigious expence of fuel. An engine having a cylinder of four feet diameter, working night and day, consumes about 3400 chaldron (London) good coals in a year. This circumstance limits the use of steam engines exceedingly. To draw water from coal-pits, where they can be stocked with unsaleable small coal, they are of universal employment. Also for valuable mines, for supplying a great and wealthy city with water, and a few other purposes where a great expence can be borne, they are very proper engines; but in a thousand cases where their unlimited powers might be vastly serviceable, the enormous expences of fuel completely excludes them.

N. B. If a cylinder of four feet diameter, consumes 3400 chaldron of good coal in a year, each chaldron containing 36 bushels, this will amount to 122,400 bushels, which if coal, as good as London coal, can be purchased at 2s. per bushel at Philadelphia, the expence of fuel for such an engine, will be 244,809 shillings, or near 30,000 dollars a year—as was observed by one of the learned council for the canal company, in his pleadings before the honorable senate of this commonwealth.

A very inquisitive and philosophical citizen of Philadelphia, who lately made a tour through many parts of England, a few years, gives the following account of steam engines in that country, viz.

* See their printed reports, dated January 31st, 1798.

† See the printed report of the joint committee of the select and common councils of the city, p. 35.

‡ See the memorials and printed addresses of the Canal Company to the Legislature during the present sessions, which, together with these letters, when concluded, will be collected and submitted for information to the public, in one pamphlet, to be sold by William Young.

December 12th, 1797—An Engine erected by Bolton and Watts, at Shadwell,* in London, raised at the rate of 903 gallons per minute, or 760,000 gallons per day of 14 hours;—it supplied a district, extending from the Tower to Limehouse Bridge and from the river to White-Chapel, containing about 8000 houses and was burned down in less than 2 hours—The great inconvenience suddenly experienced by the inhabitants may readily be conceived:—This event is surely sufficient to discourage the attempt of supplying Philadelphia by a Steam Engine, for the more regular the supply, the more certainly will the common pumps be suffered to go out of order. If, notwithstanding it should be determined to make use of a steam engine—there ought to be two erected at the same time of equal size, to communicate with the ground pipes; but surely it is of infinitely more importance to direct the public money and attention to the more certain supply by the CANAL, which having the object of Navigation in view, is doubly desirable.

I am well acquainted with two other Steam Engines which were consumed in a short time, one of which I saw at work but a few hours before it was destroyed—the other was next lot to my brothers dwelling-house, and endangered the whole neighborhood. The powerful and beautifully moving Albion Mills were likewise destroyed by fire a short time after I examined them at work. In short, as a detached machine, it is a noble engine, bt not fit for a city to depend on for a supply of water. The poor little unfortunate Steam Boat in this city one night took fire, and was accidentally extinguished by the fire having burned a hole in her bottom and sinking her.

In Birmingham I examined a powerful engine, which was tottering to ruin by its laborious strokes; and near Warrington an engine applied to a coal pit, had nearly wrought its own destruction. It is an engine that requires knowledge and skill in the construction and repair, as well as great care in the attendance. Desajuiliers mentions one which burst and killed the fire man, who had ignorantly overloaded the valve, from a desire of producing more work from the engine.

Mr. Canning, a celebrated speaker in the British House of Commons, on a late occasion, humorously observed, "That a vessel for the conveyance of coal was to be worked from Newcastle to London by means of a steam engine. She consumed so much of the coal on her voyage, that on her arrival in the port of London, scarcely a cinder was left!"

In Mr. Latrobe's newly digested project, directed to, and as he says, adopted by, his employers, the joint committee of the city, and distributed by their order for the illumination of the Senate, during the pleadings of council, in order to detail his plan for supplying the citizens with pure and wholesome water, to be taken from the mud and splatter-docks of Schuylkill near the foot of the bank at the end of Chesnut-street; he has not told us how large the Cylinders of his two steam engines are to be; but when he shall condescend to reveal this to other persons of common understanding, besides those who have adopted his plan, a near guess may be made of the expence of fuel for his two Cylinders, compared with the expence of the one Cylinder above mentioned.

But without considering the enormous expence of fuel, for such engines, it may be observed, that the maintaining them in repair, the danger of their destruction by fire, the loss of lives that may ensue, and the failure of a supply of water, possibly, when most wanted, have been sufficient to deter every wise people, from the use of them, when other means can be found.

Such means are at hand,—and the good citizens of Philadelphia are requested to consider them. At half the expence, and in far less time than will be necessary for these steam works, even if any dependence could be placed on their being adequate to the end proposed, or on the experience and abilities of the projector, a wheel engine may be placed at the foot of the Falls, with four feet of head, a small expence in the construction, no fuel necessary, and the purest water of Schuylkill at less than seventy yards distance thrown into the Canal, and the remaining part of it from the falls to the north bounds of the city, at the same time compleated, whereby the plan of Inland Navigation will be considerably forwarded; and besides a supply of the best water, the city will begin to reap part of the benefits of water carriage from that distance for Stone and some other building materials. The Canal Company have also well grounded expectations, from the encouragement of a number of their fellow citizens, within a few months, to introduce a considerable supply of the best water for the use of the city, from some of the springs and streams in the neighborhood of the same, within the limits of their charter.

These things, it is hoped will be duly weighed by the citizens of Philadelphia, before they embark farther in the waste of money and an addition of taxes, for pursuing the wild projects of their present committee, who, as it would appear, will continue during the period of their authority, the willing followers of their wonder-working engineer, be his proposals ever so extravagant. The man who can persuade them to believe, that pure water can be drawn from Schuylkill by a Canal deeper than its lowest water mark—that however turbid the water may be, it will deposit its sediment in a tunnel without choaking it up, and come pure to the drinkers in the city, by means of some magical gate that is to open itself only to the waters of the ebb. I say, the man who can persuade them to swallow all this, may also give them good hopes to receive along with good water for drinking, a fine supply of cat-fish, eels, crabs &c. swept through the tunnel along with the torrent of muddy water from the river at low-water mark; & to these cat-fish, eels, &c. he can give a touch of the steam as they pass along, and send them ready dressed into every house, so as to have eating along with the water for drinking.

* This is the Steam-Engine which Mr Latrobe represents to the joint Committee of Select and Common Councils, as still supplying part of London with water from the Thames, in the following words, viz

"Wapping, near Shadwell: This is the largest Engine in London, and receives its waters from the Thames."

This misrepresentation, with several others, respecting Steam-Engines for the supply of London and its environs with Thames water, the Committee of the City Councils, still placing faith in the word of their engineer, not more foolishly than indecently, caused to be printed and distributed among the members of the Senate, while one of the Council for the Canal Company was pleading before them.

By this Day's Mail.

WISCASSET, March 2.

Arrrived here on Thursday evening last, schooner Apollo, Capt. William Clifford, 25 days from Nevis—After being out five days, he was boarded by a French privateer schooner of ten guns, and taken without asking any questions—they took out the mate, and all the crew except one man, Mr. Soloman Trask, who feigned himself exceedingly sick. The French had possession of the vessel about 24 hours. The prize-master's pistols were lying in the binacle, and his cutlass on it. Capt. Clifford, slyly took his pistols and cutlass while he was leaning over the quarter talking with another prize-master on board a Kennebunk schooner, which was also captured at the same time—He gave the pistols to Mr. Trask—the prize master turning his head saw Captain Clifford with his cutlass, he sprung to the binacle for his pistols, and finding them gone, he called to the other schooner, which was very near, to fire on the Apollo, but the Captain ordered Mr. Trask to blow him through if he did not countermand what he had said, when he was complied with. They had on board 6 Frenchmen; Mr. Task drove four down the fore scuttle and afterwards put the 5th down and secured them, and kept the prize-master on deck. Five days after, fell in with a Philadelphia schooner bound to Jamaica, on board of which he put two of the prisoners.

After the Apollo was safe moored in the harbour of Wiscasset, the four remaining prisoners were delivered into the hands of proper authority. Three were committed to prison, and the fourth being the prize-master, tarried at the house of Joseph Tinkham, Esq. Deputy Marshal,

ANOTHER VICTORY

Has crowned the efforts of our infant Navy. Yesterday arrived the schr. Dispatch, capt. Hudson, in 15 days from the Havanna, by whom we have received the following pleasing intelligence:—That a few days before he sailed the New-York Cutter, John Jay, commanded by capt. Leonard, and the Philadelphia Cutter, Gen. Green, commanded by captain Price, in cruising off the Havanna, came across a French privateer of 12 guns, which they compelled to strike to the American Eagle. They carried their prize into the Havanna. Captain Hudson with thirty American vessels, sailed under convoy of the John Jay, the General Green and the Delaware sloop of war. We congratulate the public on the above intelligence; on the almost complete protection afforded to our West-India trade; on the rising dignity of the American character, and the general prosperity of our commerce.

Yesterday arrived the brig Eliza, Hall, Cadiz 68 days; brig John, Burton, Boston, 21 days; schooner Fair American, Venaman, Philadelphia, 23 days; schooner Nancy Wright, Brown, New-London, 14 days.

The arrival of capt. Hall, from Cadiz, furnishes but little news. Nothing of moment had taken place in the Mediterranean, since the taking of Minorca by the British fleet. Malta had not been attacked; and the accounts of the assassination of Buonaparte, were found to be fabrications. The last accounts from Egypt stated, that that general was in quiet and peaceable possession of that country; tha he was employed in organizing the country; and that his prospects of holding possession of the country were more promising than they had been some time before.

Charles Rutledge, esquire, late charge des affairs of the United States, to the court of Madrid, came passenger in the Eliza, from Cadiz.

The brig Fame, Lamont, from this port, is arrived at Bristol.

TRENTON, March 25.

General Orders.

TRENTON, March 22, 1799.

BY Requisition of the President of the United States, of the 20th of March, current, "eight troops of the New-Jersey cavalry are to be held in readiness to march promptly, should circumstances require their aid in the support of government, against the insurgents of the counties of Northampton, Bucks and Montgomery, in the state of Pennsylvania." Eight complete troops are therefore immediately to be detached for that service, as near as may be to the scene of folly and obstinacy which calls forth the energies of government, having as much respect as is practicable to the convenience of those, who so honorably performed their tour on a like occasion in the year 1794. Those who shall be warned for duty in consequence of these orders, are to take care that their swords be not loose, but well rivetted in their hilts, that their blades be sharp and bright, their pistols clean and in good order for videt duty; their horses at all times well shod, fed and gently exercised, their saddle and valise pads well stuffed, and their girths and breast plates sufficiently strong. Each officer and trooper must carry with him, if called to the field, at least two changes of linen, &c. a nose-bag, of strong canvas, and a few spare horse nails, ready headed and pointed; care being also taken, that the saddlers and farriers take with them their proper implements. Particular care must be taken by the troop officers, that each trooper supply himself with sound and dry boots, so as to preserve the health and comfort of the corps, and that every individual be furnished with strong and sharp spurs, so as to command a rapid advance of each charger at close order.

The regiments of cavalry throughout the state are immediately to prepare for actual service, for in case of revolt, nothing should be left to chance, which is within the reach of human power and forethought. Though the folly and presumption of those who, even without a ray of hope, venture on an opposition to the act of the Union most favorable to internal interests, must affect his compassion as a man, yet the Commander in Chief of New-Jersey thinks it his duty to assure the Jersey cavalry, that though under the pressure of bad health, he is ready to lead them as far as he is able, should the obstinacy of the insurgents, in the opinion of government, make the measure necessary. Correct and immediate returns of the complete troops herein ordered for service, will be immediately made to general Heard, who will, on receipt of them, send a general return, with a duplicate, to the Commander in Chief, so that the last may be forwarded immediately to the Secretary of War.

By order of his Excellency RICHARD HOWELL, Commander in Chief of the New-Jersey Militia,

J. RHEA, Aid-de-Camp.

To Adj. Gen. Anthony W. White.

On Friday last arrived in this city, a large detachment of Federal Troops under the command of captain Henry, being on their way towards Northampton (Penn.) to aid in suppressing the insurrection. They were partly from New-Brunswick, but principally from the fortifications at New-York. On Saturday morning they proceeded to Newtown, where they are to remain in readiness, until further orders.

A HANDSOME

SITUATION for BUILDINGS,

TWENTY miles due north from Philadelphia on the great post and stage road, leading from thence to Easton and Bethlehem. It is high, airy and beautiful, commanding an extensive prospect, especially on the south side;—together also, with any quantity of land contiguous, from 1 to 100 acres, arable, meadow and wood-land. On this land, about 50 poles distant, is a never-failing spring of pure water. At the spot, a well has been dug, but not finished: some collections of stones, boards and scantling for an house, were also made, a considerable time ago, and will be sold or not, at the option of the purchaser of the lot. Let tradesmen, whose business requires a public stand—let citizens, who wish a retreat for health, for pleasure, or repose, apply to the subscriber near the premises.

NATHANIEL IRWIN.

Neshaminy, march 4, 1799.

☞ Should the lot be purchased by a citizen of Philadelphia, whose business, or distance may render it inconvenient, for him to superintend the erection of suitable buildings, the subscriber will have no objection to erect such, either by CONTRACT or as AGENT for the purchaser.

PHILADELPHIA,

TUESDAY EVENING, MARCH 26.

That extraordinary man, Fouquier Tinville, really entertains the most lively hopes of success: And so well grounded are they deemed by his compeers, that the squad which he has already selected to surround him in his new dignity actually, consider themselves as Judges, Attorney Generals and Secretaries elect.

Should the new Præ fectus, the new Public Accuser, and the new Secretary, be eventually fixed in their destined seats, who will say that the "intaminatis fulget honoribus" of Horace, will not apply to Fouquier?

Quis desiderio sit pudor aut modus
Tam chari capitis?

The Chief, elate with hope, and flushed with new confidence, already moves with a grace and dignity heretofore unknown to him. The venerable wig of Mansfield, (thereby hangs a tale) already assumes a shape severe, and formal cut, truly magisterical. Every thing more and more denoting that

"No common habitant is he of Earth,
"Cats bark'd, and horses whistled at his birth."

COMMUNICATION.

WHEN we reflect on the glorious and successful stand that Great-Britain has made singly against the ferocious and desolating tyranny of France, it is impossible for us, if our feelings are not completly Frenchified, not to contemplate with increased attachment and reverence, and pride, the great nation, from which we derive our natural and political existence, in all the fortunes of which we must share in the present contest, and with which we must either stand or fall. Around her all is terror and dismay, and despondency; all, abject compromise, or timid submission to the power that all execrate, and all abhor. She alone keeps the station she originally assumed in the face of God and man. On the eternal basis of justice and equity, and right, she has kept her stand, and has singly braved the storm that has laid low so many of the most distinguished powers of the earth. The whole fabric of social order has been shaken; the work of ages has fallen in a heap of ruins around her; she alone has remained firm and unmoved; like her native oaks she has gathered strength from the storm. What a glorious distinction to be descended from such a nation? And what a proud pre-eminence would it be to be leagued with her in such a cause. While she exhibits such a spectacle to the moral eye, how mean, base, and execrable are the ravings and invectives of the infidel and anarchist; how low and contempible that policy that would hug itself in a short sighted selfish neutrality? If there is any morality in the science of politics, it is the duty of all nations to unite in crushing such a profligate race as the present despots of France; as much, if not more than, it is of every member of the federal union, to subdue an insurrection in any one state. The French revolution is an insurrection against all nations, a war against all the laws of society, and vastly more dangerous to the peace and happiness of the world, than a partial revolt of a few counties is to the United States of America.

Extract of a letter from lieutenant Byrne of Cutter General Greene, dated off the island of Cuba, March 9, 1799.

"On the 5th inst. at 1 A. M. we fell in with and captured the schooner Porpoise, pierced for 12 guns, had 1 brass nine pounder, and 26 men, loaded with provisions from the Havanna, and bound to Cape Francois—She sails very fast. Capt. Decatur took all the men out of her, and we have manned her between us. The Governor Jay was not in sight when we captured her. We are convoying another fleet of 20 sail bound to different ports in the United States, but none to Philadelphia, We send the prisoners home by the fleet. There are two cruisers ready to come out of the Havanna, We hope we may fall in with them."

Extract of a letter from Capt Stephen Decator, to the Secretary of the Navy, dated

On board the Delaware, off the Moro Castle, March 5, 1799.

SIR,

"I EMBRACE the earliest opportunity to inform you, that last night, about 12 o'clock, we saw a sail standing atho't us, after giving her four guns, she hove too, and proved to be the privateer Marsouin, commissioned out of Cape Francois, which has expired several months. She mounts by her commission one brass nine pounder in her hatchway, ten swivels, ten muskets, thirty cutlasses, bound from the Havanna to Cape Francois, with a load of beef and pork, as I understand. She was commanded by Capt. Hermaud."

Brig Jason, —— from Hamburgh is is below.

Upwards of twenty sail of vessels went to sea on Saturday last.

By the ship George Barclay, M'Allister, four months and eight days from Bengal.

Sailed from Bengal 17th Nov. Accounts of Admiral Nelson's victory were received at Calcutta early in October; Buonapare's head quarters were at Grand Cairo the 15th Sept. Dispatches were daily arriving in Bengal, from the British residents at Aleppo and Bassora, respecting the movements of the French.

An advantageous treaty had just been concluded by Lord Mornington with the Nizam, by which all Frenchmen in his service were to be given up to the Bengal government, as prisoners of war; he had also stipulated to receive ten thousand company troops into his service.

Tippo Saib had shewn some hostile appearance, and was suspected, which occasioned the Madras government to make some peremtory demands—the port of Mangalore was required as a garrantee for his neutrality—and we understand that Tippo had actually surrendered Mangalore to the British.

Capt. M'Allister put into the Cape of Good Hope, on the 17th Jan. was embargoed for a few days, and sailed on the 27th of same month, in company with a fleet of homeward bound India men, consisting of six sail, which he parted with on the following day. All was tranquil at the cape; a strong garrison and fleet lay there. The famous privateer Apollo, from Mauritius, which had taken so many vessels in the Indian seas had been taken, and carried into the cape, by one of the frigates. A division of ships of war, under the command of commodore Blanket, had sailed for the Red Sea; admiral Sir H. Christian died about the end of December.

On Wednesday the 6th current, in lat. 20, 55, N. long. 55 west, spoke the ship Mermaid, of Portsmouth, Capt. John Tilton, from Portsmouth bound to Tobago, out 24 days, all well.

Tuesday the 12th current, in lat. 28 50, N. and long. 63, spoke the Baltimore ship of war, and Revenue cutter Virginia, capt. Bright, with three sail under convoy, bound to the West Indies, out eight days from the Chesapeake, all well.

On the 29th had a very heavy gale of wind in at. 39 39, N. and long. 75 30 W.

The ship Jason, from Hamburg, has had a passage of 123 days—of course brings nothing new.
